A political cartoon depicting a boxing match. Two men are in the ring; one has 'TARUP' on his back and the other 'ADON'. They are surrounded by a crowd of spectators, some wearing hats or having names like 'MAGNUS FORUM' and 'HOMER TARUP' on their clothing. A banner hanging from the top of the ring says 'FIGHT ADON'. The scene is set outdoors with trees in the background.

A New Source of Rubber.

The discovery of a new source of rubber, from a tree known to the natives of the interior of the Congo, gives great impulse to the trade in the west coast of Africa in rubber of extremely good quality. The Kikias affinis forms a tree 10 to 12 ft. high, with a trunk 12 to 14 in. in diameter. It is said to be one of the most beautiful trees of the forest and capable of producing in a good season 100 lb. of rubber per tree. For the purpose of collecting the rubber a deep vertical cut is made through the bark and several inches deep, and a small vessel is placed in the main channel, at the base of which a vessel is placed to receive the exuding milk, which is collected by allowing it to run into a small cup, and is then, cavity made in the trunk of a tree, so that the watery portion evaporates and the solid portion remains. The milk is placed in a vessel and boiled, the rubber beginning to coagulate.

and in Massachusetts not more than 10 percent of similar petitions could be filed. The New Jersey and Massachusetts legislatures have demonstrated the value of the road to a community, and as a result the fear of increased taxation, which has been the chief cause of the adoption of a liberal and tamable plan of road construction, has been completely overcome, farmers are more interested in the attractiveness and value of their land in this way.

In the work of permanent road improvement the good roads league has been of great assistance. There have been important factors in creating public sentiment. "Too strong," says Commissioner Budd of New Jersey, "is the feeling of the people of these associations. They have no power so useful as that which makes each and every person feel complicity in the work of his own community."

Good roads leagues and associations are formed at once throughout Illinois and the work of improving and beautifying the roads is being carried on. The highway law, which provides for the improvement of the roads, is being carried out. The highway law, which provides for the improvement of the roads, is being carried out. NOVEL HIGHWAYS.

Film Fiber and Wood Shavings U. S. in Roadbuilding.

General Roy Stone, chief of the road of road inquiry, speaking of progress of road improvement, says ought to be a highway construction program, a highway construction program, a highway construction program, every county of the Union. "Talks road reminds me," says General Stone that have a novel road of road, every state of the Union, known as fiber road and is made of refuse of the paper fiber that is used in brooms, brushes, baskets and other every state of the Union, ten inches deep upon a foundation sand and then spread over it, moistened by rain, the fiber and sand, the fiber and sand, the fiber and sand, even more elastic than tarmac.

BAD ROADS TO BLAME

Why the Farmers in the East Find Business Unprofitable.

A high proportion of the bad highways question is the effect good bad roads have upon the local market and their source of supply, says the New York Tribune. In all the cities of large towns of the state there is a large number of small shops and a smaller number of big stores, and a bulker and heavier business, such as straw and grain.

In many cases the surrounding territory is quite capable of supplying demand; in all cases it should do so far as the local business is concerned. Instead, supplies are brought in by rail or canal from far away, perhaps from other states; while at the same time the local business is being depressed, are farms that have been abandoned as not worth working.

lost, they say, monopoly the market and so faring here no longer pays. The farmer, they say, is a victim who lies in the bad roads, which keep producer and the consumer apart, making it difficult, if not impossible, for the farmers to get their produce to market. The farmer, 1,000 miles away, can't get his crops to market or he cannot make his money and more cheaply than the farmer can get his produce to his in over roads that are so bill, rough and miry that half a ton of heavy load for a horse to draw as a farmer's load.

It is not that the farms in the east are longer productive, nor that the east market no longer offers fair prices for the farmer's produce. The trouble with the markets are so bad as to make most unprofitable. Good roads through out the farming regions adjacent to cities and towns would make it possible anything else to restore prosperity to the farmers, enabling them to get to the market the best possible market prices for their produce. Good roads would mean good farms, good markets and good prices and good times for all concerned.

Mr. Theodore says and makes your statement.

Chateau to Hungary.
At the beginning of the campaign, a higher aristocracy, lived in a semirural chateau. Their domain covered a large tract of land and alone recalls the feudal period of Hungarian aristocracy. The chateaux are hardly in existence now, but the old owner put in his carriage to the entrance of a Hungarian chateau, first and before any questions as to concerning the visitor's business. The visitor, after a short time of his appearance, a legion of men forward and carry the baggage to one of the half dozen stables to receive guests or otherwise. Twelve or fifteen men take for dinner, and for family guests are always present who, might arrive, and quest is ever pressed to eat. After dinner guests and hostess long drive over the estates of the rich or pay a visit to the castle. If it is a Sunday, the maid to the nearest village, to present country dances in the town square, at the house of the governor, and at other places, given or a whist party is laid out. The next morning everything is in the house, partly in the kitchen, and partly in the hall. Scotland fash is taken when one pleases. During the whole week the noble owner of the manor, the noble lady, the noble aristocracy still manage the details of their estates themselves as may be imagined, this is the life of the noble Argentine, no longer than some petty German. Such is the everyday life of a nobleman. In winter he goes to the capital, and the members in Budapest—San Argentin.
